

SPEAQ FORUM 2016

Working for change and creating safety with men who have used abuse and violence in their relationships

8th Annual SPEAQ Networking and Professional Development Event

Monday 31st October & Tuesday 1st November

A unique opportunity to strengthen connections with practitioners, share practice wisdom, and access specialist professional development and education.

DAY 1: Monday 31st October

Integrated responses and risk management: increasing the focus on those who perpetrate

An interactive half-day workshop presented by Rodney Vlais, Consultant

Rodney will lead an exploration of the continuum of perpetrator interventions and how these contribute to risk management within integrated responses. While integrated responses have focussed strongly on providing support and safety for women and children subject to the abuse, this session will look at increasing the focus on the complementary work with and around those who are perpetrating the abuse, and finding local solutions to reducing risk where it originates.

ANROWS Project Briefing - Queensland Integrated Service Responses to Domestic and Family Violence

A briefing presented by Betty Taylor, Consultant

ANROWS is currently engaged in a key Queensland Government funded project Queensland Integrated Service Responses to Domestic and Family Violence. The project is looking at a common Risk Assessment and Management Framework for Qld, a high risk intervention model, information sharing guidelines and education and training needs to support these. Betty is currently working for ANROWS on this project.

CQUniversity's Graduate Certificate in Facilitating Men's Behaviour Change

Presented by Dr Andrew Frost, Senior Lecturer, CQUniversity

CQUniversity's new Graduate Certificate in Facilitating Men's Behaviour Change has been specifically designed for practitioners who work with men who have perpetrated DFV, filling a significant gap in professional education for the sector. Andrew, course developer and coordinator, will explore how to maximise the opportunity for practitioner involvement.

SPEAQ Network Development Session

Presented by Paul Monsour, SPEAQ Secretary and Nicci Turschwell, UCC Maroochydore

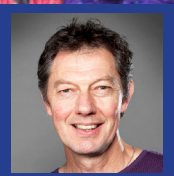

The SPEAQ network provides a vehicle for connection, interaction, learning, support and many more aspects of practitioner and sector development. In this session Nicci will facilitate a creative process to explore barriers and solutions to engagement and keeping the network relevant and accessible.

Meet the Speakers

Rodney Vlais is a leading policy adviser, development consultant, trainer and practice supervisor in family and domestic violence perpetrator intervention systems, and in perpetrator accountability. As a registered psychologist of almost 25 years, over the past 15 years Rodney has gained significant experience in providing community-based men's behaviour change programs. From 2007 until recently, Rodney held managerial and leadership positions with No To Violence (NTV) incorporating the Men's Referral Service. He is widely sought after by state and territory governments for his expertise in this field, and by peak body and other community sector NGOs across Australia. He has frequently provided comment to media sources on perpetrator interventions and related issues, and has made numerous public presentations to community-based audiences on men's responsibilities to act as allies in the struggle to end family and domestic violence.

Betty Taylor has over 25 years' experience in the violence against women sector which includes being the founding Director of the Gold Coast Domestic Violence Prevention Centre. She chaired the Queensland Domestic Violence Council for two terms, has been awarded a Centenary Medal for violence prevention work and was awarded a Churchill Fellowship to further study Collaborative Responses to Domestic Violence. Betty Taylor Consultancy provides a range of training and related services including clinical supervision, project evaluation, legal submissions and literature reviews.

CQUniversity Senior Lecturer Dr Andrew Frost has been involved in the human services field for about 30 years, working and researching in offender rehabilitation since 1993. During this time, Andrew has worked in the provision and supervision of group therapy, and the establishment of a forensic therapeutic community, and these areas remain central to his research interests. Prior to his CQUniversity appointment Andrew was a Senior Lecturer in Human Services and Social Work at the University of Canterbury, the Director of Te Awatea Violence Research Centre and Program Coordinator for the Bachelor of Social Work Program. In 2016 he started teaching in the Domestic and Family Violence Practice Postgraduate Courses at CQUniversity and he looks forward to teaching the innovative Facilitating Men's Behaviour Change Graduate Certificate Course in 2017.

DAY 2: Tuesday 1st November

Client Engagement Styles and Implications for Practice

Presented by Dr Andrew Frost, Senior Lecturer, CQUniversity

Drawing on his recent research into how child sex offenders engage with programmes, Andrew will explore the application of these findings to working with men who use domestic and family violence in this interactive workshop.

Advocates' Circle

Jo Knight and the Advocates

A face-to-face gathering of partner advocates to discuss current practice issues and continue building the advocates network. This session will run in parallel with the second part of the Client Engagement Styles workshop.

The ReNew Program for Adolescents

Presented by Andrea Edwards and Leia Mackie, Domestic Violence Action Centre (DVAC), Ipswich

Andrea and Leia will provide a brief presentation about this innovative program for adolescent boys who are using violence against their mothers; developed by Carinity Talera in partnership with DVAC.

Good Practice in Advocacy Partnerships

This session explores two aspects of the vital collaborative work between advocates and other practitioners.

Collaboration and case conferencing between behaviour change workers and victim advocates

Facilitated by UnitingCare Community Maroochydore

Effective use of an Integrated Response to manage risk in advocacy work - a case study

Presented by Jo Knight - DVPC Gold Coast

Good Practice Presentations and Practitioner Hot Topics

This session is an opportunity for more in-depth discussion of practice topics in smaller groups.

Incorporating feedback from previous years, the time for each topic has been extended to one hour, with two concurrent sessions. One of these timeslots could also be used for 'Free Time' to follow up on discussions around any additional hot topic emerging from the Forum.

Gold Coast Specialist DV Court Trial - changing the experience for 'aggrieveds' and respondents

Presented by Centacare Gold Coast with DVPC Gold Coast

Beyond the gender stereotypes in DFV

Hosted by Dr Deb Walsh, University of Qld, and colleagues

Leveraging collective contributions to Supporting Men to Keep Women and Children Safe

Presented by Dealonna Bickey and Tania Edwards, Relationships Australia, Rockhampton

Exploring accountability in the work with men who perpetrate DFV

Hosted by Townsville and Mount Isa NQDVRS staff
