

Our Mission

Preventing and responding to, gendered violence through research, education and service system support.

Our Aim

To contribute to safer communities by: strengthening integrated responses to victim-survivors and persons who use violence through knowledge creation, exchange and translation.

Our Model

Our Reach

Focusing on regions, we have a national footprint as part of Australia's most inclusive, accessible and socially innovative university.

RESEARCH + EVALUATION

Our research is academically rigorous and socially impactful. We lead proactive and responsive evidence-based research exploring diverse gendered violence-related themes to improve the lives of individuals and communities.

Our work is participatory and trauma-informed, amplifying the voices of the marginalised, those with lived experience, and frontline professionals.

EDUCATION + TRAINING

We empower learners by meeting them where they are — delivering high-quality, practice-focused education that strengthens workforce capability now and into the future. Our education and training options are self-paced, high-quality, affordable and ultra flexible.

Our courses and training are evidence-informed, and we foster emerging gendered violence researchers through CQUniversity's Research Higher Degree program.

SERVICE SYSTEM SUPPORT

We have a focus on knowledge translation and exchange to strengthen the service systems encountered by both victim-survivors and those who use violence.

Our work bridges research, education and practice, equipping organisations with tools and insights that improve outcomes and drive systemic change.
